How to achieve your International Diploma in Business Analysis

Step 2 - you will need to pass an oral exam

The 50 minutes oral examination will be with two examiners and the questions will be based on topics from your chosen specialist modules.

The questions asked by the oral examiner will require you to discuss and apply the topics in the oral examination syllabus. They may require you to demonstrate knowledge of a specific subject area, or to apply knowledge to a given scenario.

The questioning may cover a topic in overview or may require more detailed knowledge. The questions are designed to explore the interconnections between the different subjects and to examine your ability to apply techniques or combinations of techniques to different situations.

The examiners are looking for you to demonstrate the following aspects of performance:

- knowledge of the key principles and content of the subjects in the syllabus.
- the part each of the techniques and concepts plays.
- how you might apply the techniques and concepts in the workplace.
- the purpose of the techniques and concepts.

What could have been a daunting amount of learning was delivered in a way that was manageable, engaging, participatory and encouraging.

The trainer presented the material clearly and at a good pace with regular opportunities to assess and reinforce our understanding; he drew our attention to key areas and guided us through example questions to prepare us for the exam.

I achieved a much higher pass than I had expected. Thoroughly recommended.
